A MILLION MUZZLES

Pointed at Major Mckinley by Retail Dealers in Firearms.

THE PROPOSED TARIFF ON GUNS

They Claim Would Leave Them No Customers Worth Their Powder. A BIG FIGHT FOR THE PRESENT DUTY

The jobbers in guns are up in arms against the proposed revision of the tariff, as it affects them. It is nothing unusual for them to be in that state, but this time a million muzzles point at the head of Major McKinley. That statesman realizes that the trials of the author of a tariff bill are as great as the criticisms thrown at the head of the writer of a French novel. A fight was inaugurated recently by Schoverling, Daley & Gales, of New York, one of the largest jobbers in firearms in the country. They sent out circulars to all the jobbers in the country, asking assistance to the leading jobbers in the country, and now protests of a similar nature are being sent in Wednesday Mr. Kirkham himself was taken from the general trade.

All the dealers in Pittsburg have given their hearty support to the move. THE CASE STATED.

The facts as set forth in the circular are about the following: At present there is no duty at all on gun barrels, and on finished guns the duty is 35 per cent. ad valorem. The McKinley bill, if passed, would make the duty range from 80 to 100 per cent. ad valorem. This would have the result of cutting out all the cheaper grades of guns, and it would be impossible to buy a gun for less than $25. In the grade of guns rang-ing from $8 to $25 is where nearly all the sales are made, and as most people will not be able to pay more than that amount it would reduce the sales to half, with a similar reduction in the sale of ammu-

As to the origin of the bill, the circular gives the following reason: "The demand for the proposed increase, making the new duty nearly three times what it has been, comes from a few American makers of double guns (they do not all ask it) who desire to do what they can to force the imported guns out of the market, and from the makers of single guns, who think if they can get the double guns high enough, the men of moderate means will be obliged to buy single guns instead. They have labored incessantly with the Congressional commit-tees, and thus far have accomplished their purpose. You know very well that the American makers have no guns to offer to take the place of the cheap imported. They cannot produce them, and do not propose to. WHAT GUNS COST.

"The cheapest American-made gun i listed at $30, and only one gun at that price; all others are higher. The great bulk of the imported guns are under $12 custom house value, and retail from $8 to $20. Why. then, should the duty be trebled? The Government don't need the money, the buyer does; and unless it can be shown (which it cannot) that the industry of the country is going to be greatly benefited, there certainly can be no valid reason for the imposition of so enormous a dutynearly three times as great as that under which the American manufacturers have been enabled to establish during the past 25 years a score of successful factories and to practically drive out of the market all foreign goods of similar values.

"The American makers urged upon the committee that the cheap imported guns were trash, that they were dangerous, and that a duty should be placed on them high enough to prevent their importation. We and will cost $15,000 a mile. desire to call your attent ion to the fact that every imported gun is doubly proved by the Government of the country where made; the barrels are each tested, then the gun assembled, and all faulty material is destroyed. On the other hand, the barrels of all American guns are made in Belglum (the bill admits these free of duty); the larger part of these are never proven, the American makers refusing to pay the cost of the proving and the loss of faulty ma-

ALL OF THEM PROTESTING. The dealers in Pittsburg were all visited yesterday, and though they are all tariff men, they are against the proposed change. When J. A. Johnston was asked about the matter, he said: "It is a well-known fact there are but few shotgun manufacturers in the United States that pretend to make any thing but high priced guns, and nearly all guns sold to larmers and country people are of the cheaper grade, such as have been im-ported, and which have not been and cannot be manufactured in this country to be sold anything near as cheap as the imported article. Nearly every farmer and farmer's boy needs a gun, they need them to protect their premises from tramps and house-thieves as well as wild animals, such as foxes, bears, wolves, hawks, crows, owls, etc. A farmer must be protected from these ferozious animals and wild birds.

"The present prices of guns are high now for a great majority of farmers, and it is a considerable tax on them to buy a reasonably good article at the present rates, but should the prices be advanced from 50 to 100 per cent as is proposed by the new schedule of duty to be imposed, what shall the larmer do? There is only one way, that is to do without guns, knives, razors, scissors, etc., and suffer enormous loss and inconvenience thereby.

"This is not a matter of politics with any of us, it is a matter of business. The gun-makers of America are amply protected now by the import duty of 25 per cent on muzzle-loading guns, and 35 per cent on breech-loading guns, and it is a matter of wast importance to every farmer, their sons, wives and daughters. Let your readers know that there are not over 20 shotgun manufacturers in the United States; these few want a monopoly, and to the disad-vantage of 1,000,000 of farmers. Is this justice? Is it right or proper?

NO NEED FOR AN ADVANCE. "There is no need for an advance. The American gunmakers are rapidly becoming millionaires by making high-priced guns The people who use the cheap guns will be unable to buy them and therefore the greater part of our trade will be gone and we will have to quit business or make only a scanty living. There are no guns manu-factured in Pittsburg except a few of the old muzzle loaders. We can import guns and make more money than we could if we

w. S. Brown told a similar story. He said: "Ten per cent of all the guns sold are cheap ones. Men do not want to put much money in a gun, and if the price goes over the $25 limit they will do without them. They want a big tax on finished goods, and yet want to get gun barrels in tree of duty. It will not only rain our business, but will seriously affect many other trades, such as the powder and lead men, brass manufact urers, paper makers and many others.

FEARS IT WILL PASS.

I fear that the bill will pass, and therefore all the jobbers are carrying just as big stocks as they can. Besides this the cut-lery trade will also suffer. On table cutlery it is all right at present, as the American manufacturers are the leaders in that branch, but they are not so good in pocket cutlery, and on this they want to increase the duty almost 100 per cent. In short, it will put prices out of the reach of the many and let few manufacturers add several cyphers to their already great fortunes."

I. E. Isaaca, or 419 Smithfield street, held similar views, and said if the bill passed the gun trade would be ruined. James C. Lindsay was against the bill. but did not like to say much on the matter.

"It will make us go out of business," said Mr. Bown. "Our trade depends upon the sale of cheap guns. The manufacturers are at present making 50 per cent profit on their imvestment, and I can't see that they need any further protection at the expense of the

CLEARING THE TITLE.

Suits to Bar a Divorced Wife From Asserting a Claim of Dower.

SORROW REWARDED BY A KNOCK-DOWN

Thomas Patterson, Esq., yesterday filed his report as master in the equity case of Charles Kohlmeyer against Margaret Kohlmeyer, or Miller. The suit was to clear the title to 38 pieces of property in Pittsburg, upon which are erected 60 houses, the title being clouded by a claim of dower. The case hinged on a divorce granted Kohlmeyer from his wife in Monroa county, O., in 1867, the validity of which in Pennsylvania was questioned. Kohlmeyer stated that he was married to the defendant in Odenbach, Germany, in 1844. Soon after marriage he found she was unfaithful to him. She left him in 1846, and went to live with John Miller, with whom she lived until Miller's death in Allegheny county in 1886.

DIVORCED AND REMARRIED. Kohlmeyer, after his wife left him, came to this country, living in different places, and while in Monroe county. O., securing the divorce. He then married Catharine Wilbert, and upon her death married Mary Rohrkaste, his present wife. While in this country he accumulated considerable property, of which he sold a great deal, principally in the Thirty-second ward, and Kohlmeyer's plan of lots in the same ward. The titles to the property, however, were clouded by reason of the question as to the validity of the divorce in Pennsylvania, subjecting the property to the likelihood of a claim of dower. This made it difficult for any of the owners to sell, and to clear up the case the suit was brought. It was asked that his first wife the defendant, be barred and estopped forever from asserting any claim of dower, widow's third, etc.

The defendant gave her testimony somewhat different from Kohlmeyer. She said that in 1846 he sued her family for her share of some land and made her go into court and testify against her mother and SAYS HE KNOCKED HER DOWN. He was angry at the decision of the Court, and when she tried to reconcile him, knocked her down and beat her, telling her to go where her property was. She went home to her mother, who was married to John Miller. Kohlmeyer and she made up again, but shortly afterward he deserted her.

The testimony of other witnesses showed that the defendant went by the name of Miller and her children took the name of Miller.

The master, in his report, said that the case turned on the voluntary separation of the defendant from her husband; there was no dispute as to her unfaith ulness after the separation, but an abandonment of her by her husband was the only thing that could save her dower interest. In conclusion he decided the case in favor of Kohlmeyer and submitted a decree for the approval of the Court, barring the defendant from any and all dower interest, and enjoining her from ever asserting a claim.

MILLER'S WILL UP AGAIN.

Sens of the Well-Known Lawyer Trying to Have Him Declared Insane Prior to His Death-Whisky by the Demijohn.

The taking of testimony in the case of the contest of the will of the late A. H. Miller, Esq., was commenced yesterday before Judge Over, in the Orphans' Court. Hami ton Miller, the contestant, was represented by S. M. Raymond, Esq., while Florence Miller, the beneficiary under the will, was represented by Messrs. Hampton, Dalzell and Gordon.

N. Holmes, Jr., of N. Holmes & Sons, bankers, and W. R. Holmes, subscribing witnesses to the will, were the first called. They said that Mr. Miller had told them it was his will, and they considered him all right mentally. John G. Holmes gave similar testimony. Dr. Andrew Fleming, Mr. Miller's medical adviser said that Mr. Miller's first serious trouble was partial blindness. He did not think it was caused by whisky. He said Mr. Miller was a moderate but steady drinker. W. A. Lewis had been in Mr. Miller's office from 1864 to 1881. The deceased had been an habitual drinker. The last two years he was weak and feeble and did not attend to much business. W. H. Shannon testified to having seen Mr. Miller drunk. Albert Tammany, coachman for Mr. Miller in 1880 and 1881, testified to seeing liquor in Mr. Miller's room and bringing packages of it to him.

J. C. Finch, a wholesale liquor dealer, testified to selling liquor to Mr. Miller. He never saw him under the influence. W. B. Hays knew Mr. Miller, and on one occasion thought he acted a little queer and he semed to be intoxicated.

Samuel Wilkinson, colored, said Mr. Miller had seemed to live on whisky. It was given in milk according to the doctor's orders. Florence Miller seemed to be in charge about the house and paid the bills. Mrs. Miller could not get money or goods without consulting Florence. He seemed to be on good terms with his father, but not with his mother. A. H. Miller, a son of the testator, who was le't out of the will, said he was at home from 1880 until his father died. He saw demijohns delivered at the house. Florence attended to the business from 1880. He had great influence over his father and nothing could be done or any money spent without consulting Florence.

Zant Miller, another son, testified that in 1887, about six or seven weeks before his father died, he had a conversation with him. His father said that his will was not right. He wanted to make a will dividing his money among his children and tying it up in the hands of trustees, so it could not be squandered. He had sent for John Hampton to come and draw up the paper, but the latter did not come. The witness also testified as to his father's drinking habits. The hearing was continued unti-

this morning. IN THE UNITED STATES COURT.

REASON WE LEAD

The clothing trade of Pittsburg is because we best satisfy the people. The fact is the people don't long go where they are not satisfied. Sometimes they forget that ASSERTION IS NOT PROOF, and become the prey of the "fictitious" advertiser. But the ONCE does them, and they are never seen within the walls of that store again.

Genuine satisfaction in Clothing, genuine satisfaction in price, are the reasons why our trade is so rapidly increasing.

bagging at the knee or crotch, or dragging at the bottom. And why not buy good-fitting pants, if you can get them here for less money than you have to pay for other dealers' misfits? Yes, why not? why not?

One of those magnificent hand-painted Velvet Panels (did you see our French Artist Studio in Fifth avenue Show Window?) will be given free to every patron of Ladies' Shoe and Cloak Department. To Boys we will present our wonderful Castonet Wheels, Regulation Balls and Bats or Championship Ball Game admission tickets. The tickets are also presented to purchasers of Men's Clothing.
